

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A method for producing a quantum dot silicate thin film for light emitting devices. The quantum dot silicate thin film is produced by introducing a silane compound having a functional group capable of interacting with a quantum dot and at least one reactive group for a sol-gel process into the surface of the quantum dot or a matrix material for dispersing the quantum dot, thereby exhibiting excellent mechanical and thermal stability.